

Executive Certificate Course in Geopolitical Analysis

November 2026

On behalf of the Geneva Institute of Geopolitical Studies, we are pleased to inform you about our upcoming 5-day Executive Certificate Course in Geopolitical Analysis, taking place in Geneva from 16 to 20 November 2026.

Geopolitics is playing an increasingly important role in shaping the contemporary international system. For companies and organizations operating across borders, the ability to understand geopolitical dynamics, anticipate risks, and assess their potential implications has become an essential component of strategic decision-making. Yet the rapidly evolving geopolitical landscape can be complex and unpredictable, often prompting organizations to react to geopolitical risks rather than anticipate them. By systematically integrating geopolitical analysis, risk assessment, strategic foresight, and geopolitical scenario planning into their decision-making processes, organizations can better anticipate emerging challenges and opportunities, strengthen their resilience, and make more informed strategic choices.

Our Executive Certificate Course in Geopolitical Analysis, is designed to provide participants with the concepts, methods, and practical tools required to analyze geopolitical developments and assess their strategic implications.

The course covers key themes including:

- Concepts and methods of geopolitical analysis
- Applied strategic analysis
- Geopolitical risk assessment
- Strategic foresight
- Geopolitical scenario building
- Emerging Asia and Multipolarity

Case studies and practical illustrations will examine geopolitical configurations and developments that are significantly shaping the current international system. Combining theory with practice, the course integrates exercises, workshops, and interactive discussions, enabling participants to apply geopolitical analysis, foresight, and scenario-building techniques to concrete situations.
